

Laudato Si' Essay

If I lived in an area without clean water, I would feel very disappointed and frustrated. I could not imagine not being able to get a glass of water, brush my teeth, or wash my hands. Not having safe water can negatively affect your life. This would be hard for me and my family. Not having clean water should be solved in America and in places all over the world.

Laudato Si' teaches us that water is a privilege from our earth, and we should not take it for granted. Laudato Si' teaches us that the earth is God's gift to us and we are responsible to take care of it. We need to be proactive on everything we can do to help our planet. For example, turning off lights, growing your own food, recycling, and not wasting water are a few little things that we can do to make a big difference. The people who live in places that do not have safe water are important. They are our neighbors and God connects us. Laudato Si' also teaches us that we need to take care of others in need. We should help those who are in need of clean water. Treat others as you would want to be treated. We should come together to solve this problem.
